Quick Break In Coal Deadlock Forecast

CONCILIATOR SAYS ACCORD DUE ANY TIME

Steelman Reports Contract Possibly Ready For Signing Today.

STEEL STRIFE GOES ON

Union Employes on Strike at Bridgeport as Jones Plans Conference.

(By Associated Press)

A quick break in the wage deadlock which has paralyzed most of the nation's soft coal industry this month was forecast confidently today by John R. Steelman, director of the United States conciliation service.

He said a contract which would open a majority of the mines was "very nearly in shape" for possible signature later today by representatives of the CIO United Mine Workers and northern Appalachian coal operators

A final effort will be made to bring southern operators into the accord as well, he added They bolted the contract conference recently saying they would not agree to elimination of a wage differential between northern and southern fields.

"Coal soon must move," Steelman declared. "The necessities of the defense program must soon take precedence over the interests of any individuals or groups involved in this situation."

The old contract which expired March 31 procided wages of $6 a day in the northern fields and $5.60 in the southern area. The union asked a flat $7 scale in both districts, but the southern operators declared that elimination of the differential would force many of them out of business. They countered by offering the union an 11 per cent wage boost.

Steelman indicated that, if necessary to avert a threatened coal shortage, a separate contract would be signed covering mines in Pennsylvania, northern West Virginia, Ohio, Michigan and Maryland, representing more than 36 per cent of the nation's production. If Indiana and Illinois operators

'Desperate Five Per Cent' Hold Power In France Today

By KENNETH DOWNS
(INS Staff Correspondent)

LISBON—I have just come from France, where I spent five weeks. During those five weeks I kept on the move. I traveled throughout unoccupied France from the hungry Pyrenees region to the unreal capital of Vichy.

I visited the dead but vastly overcrowded cities of Marseilles and Lyons and the despondent areas of the once rich Riviera. And because I could make no sense of the anomalies and contradictions of unoccupied France, I took the "underground railroad" through barbed wire entanglements and German patrols into the forbidden area of occupied France, spending five days in a Paris I no longer knew.

The whole experience had such a dream-like quality of unreality, that it is difficult now to set down clearly the things I saw and learned. The tragic change in France and the French is so great that it must be seen to be realized.

You have the inescapable impression, from the moment you enter the country, that France is through for a long time as a first-rate power. Apathy and pessimism pervade the land. The people are beaten; they admit

Fierce Battle Flames Along Entire Front

Germans Admit Stubborn Resistance In Greece as London Concedes Situation In Yugoslavia Bad; England, Germany Bombed.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (INS) — President Roosevelt by formal proclamation today recognized the existence of a state of war between Hungary and Yugoslavia.

(By Associated Press)

Wide-open battle flamed along the entire British front in Greece today, and the Germans acknowledged that Hitler's blitzkrieg invasion was meeting "stubborn" resistance after previously asserting that the Allies were in headlong retreat.

"Our troops are now in contact with the enemy along the whole of our front in Greece," the British middle east command said tersely.

It was apparent that a climactic struggle which may decide the fate of the Aegean kingdom was fast developing.

DNB, the official German news agency, said hundreds of British prisoners, including engineers—from the English Midlands, Australia and New Zealand—had been captured by Nazi infantry in "hard fighting" in the mountains.

British quarters in Athens said German panzer spearheads were executing savage thrusts, but declared that nowhere had they overshot the new Allied defense line.

The apparent collapse of Yugoslavia, coupled with a 65-mile German break into northern Greece, gave a darker turn to events for the Allies, however, in the 11-day-old battle of the Balkans.

London conceded that the situation in Yugoslavia was bad.

Hitler's high command reported the capture of Sarajevo, central Yugoslavia, where the assassination of Archduke Franz Ferdinand touched off the 1914-18 World war, and declared that "thousands of Serbs" were surrendering.

The British likewise acknowledged that the pressure of Nazi panzer divisions—striking on the Allied right flank and pouring through the lofty Siatista Pass to easier terrain to the south—was increasing violently.

The Greek legation in London asserted, however, that several "weak and doomed" Greek forts, isolated in eastern Macedonia when the Germans captured Salonika, were still holding out under terrific artillery and dive-bombing attacks.

Information reaching London indicated that Yugoslavia no longer had unified control over her armies, but it was believed that they would continue to fight as guerrillas.

The German high command, which last week asserted that the Serb army was "destroyed," declared today:

"The remnants of the Serbian army are nearing dissolution. The number of prisoners and the amount of booty is increasing hourly."

Premier Mussolini's high command said Italian troops had captured Yugoslavia's chief naval base at Split in a 240-mile thrust down the Adriatic seacoast, and the town of Erseke, Albania, 30 miles south of fallen Corizza, had been retaken from the Greeks. The Fascists were said to be pressing on toward the nearby Greek frontier, rapidly approaching a junction with the Germans.

Greek front-line dispatches said the Germans suffered heavy losses in knifing a 65-mile salient into northern Greece, converging in twin drives from Salonika and Bitolj Pass.

There were strong indications,

TEMBLOR RAZES MEXICAN AREA; CITY DESTROYED

Doctors, Nurses Rushed To Scene of Devastation After Earthquake.

MEXICO CITY—Nine airplane loads of doctors, nurses and medicines were ordered today to Colima, a town of 30,000 almost destroyed by an earthquake that damaged central Mexico from coast to coast.

Colima was calling for help by radio, the only means of communication it had left. The city and its area, near the Pacific coast, had another temblor at 7:45 last night, more than six hours after the first devastating shocks. The early shocks had done almost $600,000 damage in Mexica City, 600 miles away.

A radio message from Pedro Ortiz, governor of Colima state, said "a good percentage" of Colima city's population had been killed or injured.

The ministry of interior here said Colima was "for the greater part destroyed," and that it had spent a night of terror. The city was without lights, since the dam supplying water to the hydro-electric plant was destroyed. The rumbling of the earth continued long after dark. The 12,750-foot Colima volcano began spewing lava setting fire to the surrounding forests.

Volcanic dust rained down on the whole area. Most inhabitants of the towns fled to the open spaces, spending the night in fields and gardens. Some were fleeing the Colima region in wild panic with what household possessions they could carry or cart along the roads.

SENATE DELAYS CONVOY TALKS UNTIL APRIL 30

'Anti' Resolution Made First Order of Business For Session Then.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Avoiding an immediate showdown on the convoy issue, the senate foreign relations committee agreed unanimously today to delay until April 30 consideration of a resolution forbidding the use of American naval vessels for convoy purposes.

Members reported that the anti-convoy resolution, proposed by Senator Tobey (R-NH), was made the "principal order of business" for April 30. In the interim, they said, the state department will be asked to express its views on the proposed ban.

The committee's deliberations on the convoy question at this time assumed added significance because of President Roosevelt's statement at a press conference yesterday that American merchant ships traveling the world's sea lanes outside of prohibited combat zones would be accorded full protection.

Emphatically, Mr. Roosevelt told reporters such protection was not a question of policy but a matter of law. Some legislators speculated that his statement meant, in effect, that naval escorts would be provided any time a vessel under the American flag faced potential danger in delivering her cargo.

Such potential danger might arise, authorities generally agreed, if and when United States ships undertake to deliver munitions to Egypt, through the newly opened Red Sea

Vining's Sales Lecture Series Will End Tonight

Vernon E. (Sam) Vining's four-week sales rally to promote better buying and selling in Mansfield will come to an end tonight when he delivers the final in a series of lectures on "How To Give Mansfield More For Its Money." Topic of this last lecture at John Simpson auditorium will be "You, Yourself Inc."

Following Vining's talk, announcement will be made of the prize-winners in the $300 sales contest held last week in connection with the sales course. Sales persons recommended in letters from customers noticing unusual sales technique will be given $5. Persons writing the winning letters will also win $5 prizes. The letters were written to the Retail Merchants association, which sponsored the course and contest.

With the presentation of his fourth pair of red suspenders to a member of his audience tonight, Vining will have completed a unique experiment in sales promotion. His lectures were informal and pointed toward developing a mental rather than a mechanical plan for better selling. He dropped charts and experts opinions and talked directly to the sales persons attending as people who were selling daily to other people.

CHECK HELD UP

State Declines to Pay Woman Who Took Leave Before Resigning.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Deputy State Auditor Norman Beck disclosed today that a $250 March salary check was being withheld from Mrs. Rose C. Beatty who relinquished superintendency of the State Girls' Industrial school at Delaware March 1 to take a 90-day leave with pay before resigning.

Beck said Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, who was out of the city, "did not see how two persons could be paid for the same job."

SEES CONTROL

Nelson Says Fixing of Prices Likely to Halt Inflation.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Donald M. Nelson, director of defense purchases, said today that government action to fix maximum prices in a number of commodities may be necessary to forestall inflationary price spirals.

He mentioned steel, textile fabrics and leather as commodities which "may require" price schedules.

"Price increases may have to be made," Nelson said at a press conference, "but what we want to prevent is prices and wages and everything else chasing each other by the tail until everything is out of control."

Nelson said that he believed no blanket advance in steel prices was justified at this time.

Dies has long been regarded as a possible senatorial candidate in Texas. His announcement was the second one for the special election which must be held before July 9.

CHECKS PLANE STUNTING HERE

Aeronautics Authority Gets Mansfield Complaints on Low Flying.

Civil Aeronautics authorities at Cleveland said today they will investigate three complaints from Mansfield of an airplane flying dangerously low over homes in the northwest section of the city late yesterday.

Residents of that part of the city said the pilot had tried "diving tactics" a short distance overhead and they feared the plane might crash into their homes.

J. R. Harrington, manager of the Mansfield airport, said the offending plane was not operating out of the airport here. He said complaints indicated that the unidentified pilot violated two rules for flying over the city. One ruling makes it illegal to fly lower than 1,200 feet over Mansfield and the other prohibits acrobatic maneuvers over the city.

Harrington advised persons making complaints to copy the plane's license numbers on the lower side of the wings so it will be possible to identify the pilot.

It was understood that the Civil Aeronautics headquarters at Cleveland will send an investigator here to question the Mansfielders who filed the complaints in an effort to learn the identity of the pilot.

BARES PLOT

Rumanian Premier Says Iron Guard Planned His Murder.

BUCHAREST, Rumania—(AP)—Premier Gen. Ion Antonescu announced today the discovery of an alleged Iron Guard plot to murder him and members of his cabinet.

Antonescu, it was disclosed, told his cabinet yesterday that the murders were planned to take place during church services in the Easter holidays of the Orthodox church this coming week-end.

The premier said that Rumanian authorities now were rounding up the plotters. The killing of a Bucharest bookseller a few days ago was officially described as a preliminary in the assassination plot.

After a court martial had imposed death sentences on a 21-year-old waiter and a 22-year-old clerk in that case, they were shot last night. Antonescu refused their pleas for pardons.

WOLFE WINS IN ASHLAND SCRAP

Democratic Chairman Victor In Election Board Fight; State Names Tenschert.

ASHLAND—With the appointment today of Joseph Tenschert of Loudonville to the Ashland county board of elections, County Democratic Chairman Roe E. Wolfe scored a victory over a Democratic party faction which had sought to oust him as the party's titular leader in the county.

Secretary of State John Sweeney appointed Tenschert following a two-week battle in which a reported majority of the county executive committee voted to remove Wolfe as chairman.

Wolfe, who headed the group which endorsed Tenschert for the board post, won the first round last week when the secretary of state ruled that Merle Yeater, vice chairman of the committee, could not legally call a meeting to endorse a candidate for the election board.

Yeater was nominated in opposition to Tenschert about 10 days ago at a committee session called by himself. Tenschert was selected at another meeting called by Chairman Wolfe.

The secretary of state ruled that Yeater had no legal authority to call a meeting and added that Wolfe could not be removed as chairman by the action of a majority of the committee members at the vice chairman's meeting.

Tenschert will fill the unexpired term of James Hess of Polk who died recently. The term ends Feb. 29, 1944.

GRANTS ORDER

Appeals Court In Temporary Ruling on Black Case.

The Fifth district appeals court yesterday granted a temporary injunction holding up procedure in the personal tax case involving the estate of the late Frank B. Black until May 20.

County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe who attended the court's hearing at New Philadelphia said the injunction will prevent him from further assessment of taxes against the estate until the court decides the case in May.

Yesterday's hearing was on a writ of prohibition sought by attorneys for Michael Hallabrin, Mansfield plaintiff in a taxpayer's suit involving the Black estate. Action for the writ was against Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston who recently granted an injunction defending Auditor Wolfe from contempt proceedings if he did not proceed with the assessment.

Hallabrin's counsel, including Atty. Joseph A. Bayer, Mansfield, contended that the appeals court had ordered the auditor to make the assessment and Judge Huston lacked jurisdiction to halt the proceedings.

Charter to Remain In G. A. R. Club Room at Memorial Hall

McLaughlin Post 131 of the Grand Army of the Republic may be only a memory in Mansfield, but the post's original charter will remain on the wall of the club room in the Memorial building on Park avenue west, trustees of the building decided today.

The McLaughlin post passed out of existence several weeks ago with the death of its last member, W. B. Hammett, who was past 90.

Since then a number of patriotic organizations in the city had sought the charter for their club rooms, Memorial building trustees said.

The trustees' action in ordering the charter retained in the Memorial building followed a letter of instructions from the G. A. R. national headquarters.

William W. Nixon, national commander, said, "No department officer can authorize any organization or any individual to take possession of a charter or books of a post contrary to the laws made by our National encampment."

He said the charter must either be returned to national headquarters or held in a public building where the custodian will be responsible for it.

Replying that the yellowing charter will remain in the Memorial building, trustees of the building told Commander Nixon that the charter "will be honored by the soldier and sailor organizations and their auxiliaries having headquarters in the Memorial building and it will keep ever fresh in their memories the valor and sacrifices of the defenders of our country in the Civil war."

Cummins was a Mansfield attorney for 47 years, practicing with Atty. John F. Kramer since 1919. Funeral arrangements were incomplete early this afternoon.

PROLONGED: Nazis Pour Big Shower of Bombs on Ireland

(By Associated Press)

LONDON — The German air force carried the war to northern Ireland again last night, raining bombs over a large part of Ulster in a prolonged attack which apparently equalled in intensity simultaneous raids on many areas of England.

At the same time, the RAF swept across the channel to attack Kiel, bombing that north German naval base for the 38th time since the start of the war.

The British made no immediate mention of any plane losses, but declared six German raiders had been downed over England.

(The Germans said British night raiders had dropped bombs at several places in northern Germany, killing two persons, injuring others and destroying buildings. They They declared very strong Nazi bomber formations had participated in the attack on northern Ireland, effectively blasting military objectives.)

A communique issued in Belfast said the German assault on northern Ireland, which lasted several hours, was "vicious and indiscriminate" in some areas and expressed fear casualties would prove heavy. Damage to industrial premises and residential property was acknowledged.

It was the second sustained air attack Britain's north Irish allies have suffered, following by exactly one week a sharp assault in which nine persons were reported killed.

Departing from their usual procedure, the Nazi raiders who attacked England last night fanned out over the country, instead of concentrating on a single town.

The government said the raids were on a "fairly heavy scale."

SURRENDER: Report Italian Duke Asks Peace In Ethiopia

(By United Press)

LONDON — Emissaries of the Duke of Aosta, Italian viceroy of Ethiopia, have arrived at Dire Dawa and are discussing with British army chieftains terms for the capitulation of 76,000 Italian troops still resisting in Ethiopia, it was understood today.

British military authorities here said they had received reliable confirmation of reports that the emissaries had arrived at Dire Dawa, on the Addis Ababa-Djibouti railroad, "on a very important mission."

An Italian surrender in East Africa had been expected here because of the danger to tens of thousands of Italian civilians from vengeful Ethiopian tribesmen, who are revolting in increasing numbers.

"Italian forces now are gradually concentrating in three Abyssinian (Ethiopian) areas—Dessie, Gondar and Jimma," military quarters said today. "It is estimated roughly that in the Dessie district there are 10,000 Italian troops and 12,000 natives, while there are 8,000 Italians and 9,000 natives in the Gondar area. Troops in the Jimma region are estimated at 22,000 Italians and 15,000 natives."

Military quarters said the Italians had surrendered at Obbia, Italian Somaliland, 320 miles up the coast from Mogadiscio, a British patrol flying over Garda, 309 miles north of Obbia, saw white flags flying.

British patrols attacked and routed the Italians at Safartak Ford, 30 miles southeast of Debra Markos, capital of Gojjam province. Forts on the left bank of the blue Nile in the Debra Markos area were taken by the British.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—You learn things every day out here.

Now I was under the impression that an actor, of all people, could manage a satisfactory strut. It took a director, name Rouben Mamoulian to disillusion me, out there under the hot bright sun of old Seville, down in the bull ring of "Blood and Sand" on the back lot, in sight was a head. A head huge and amiably glassy-eyed, and thoroughly stuffed. Attached to the neck was a rubber-tired vehicle, intended to give the head dexterity and agility in practice sessions with aspiring matadors.

ROBBIN COONS

The scene was the triumphal entry of the matadors and crew into the ring, under the cheers and applause of adoring aficianados in the stands.

To the strains of hot Spanish music from a phonograph, the procession entered strutting—strutters in brilliant costumes, beaded, jeweled, braided. Matator Tyrone Power, Matador Anthony Quinn, Picador John Carradine and the rest. But——

After the first take Mamoulian was critical.

"Show more pride, more arrogance," he demanded.

To an untrained eye the next take revealed some quite satisfactory strutting—especially on the part of Power and Quinn. Said Mamoulian: "This is a procession of Greek gods. You're not men. You're immortals!"

He had a brief conference with the leader of the procession, Alphone DuBois a young man with a stocky build and a firm jaw. "You were smiling," said Rouben. "You do not smile—you are a god."

The unsmiling smiler tried again, with the others. It was better. The strutting practically filled the arena with swing shoulders.

MAMOULIAN seemed pleased. "This time," he said, "give me a little more of that satanic pride. You feel you're good—you know you're good!"

I don't know how the strutting finally came out. Strutting away from the set, I knew it was under way again. Last I heard was Rouben Mamoulian's slightly anguished call to his aficionados:

"Put away your newspapers, park your chewing gum—and, please, NO SUN-BATHING up there, please!"

GERMANS DROP FLOATING MINES IN CANAL PORT

Suez Outlet For U. S. Aid To Mediterranean Mined By Nazi Planes.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The Suez Canal port of Ismalia, to which President Roosevelt recently indicated American ships might carry war supplies for the British forces in the Mediterranean area, has been heavily mined by German warplanes, it was learned today.

Diplomatic advices reaching the American government indicate the approaches to that Egyptian port at the southern end of the Suez Canal have been so thoroughly mined that it will be impossible for American vessels to make Ismalia the terminus for supplies.

The floating mines have been land by German planes, many of which operated during the night and thus escaped the Royal Air Force units which patrol the Suez Canal area during the day.

President Roosevelt, in announcing last week his decision to authorize American ships to carry war supplies to the Red sea area, mentioned Ismalia as the likely port of discharge for the cargoes. He pointed out that a railroad line connected Ismalia with Cairo and Alexandria, and that the supplies could be shipped overland from that port.

Authoritative quarters now believe it will not be practical nor safe to attempt to ship the supplies beyond the Red sea. There are ports along the African side of the Red sea at which the cargoes could be unloaded quickly and transported overland by rail to Cairo.

Meanwhile, speculation was rife in Washington as to what President Roosevelt meant by the statement at his latest press conference that the United States government was obliged by law to protect American merchant ships on the high seas, providing they are not travelling through combat zone areas in violation of this country's domestic laws.

German submarines have been sinking on sight and without warning ships suspected of carrying supplies to Great Britain. This constitutes virtually unrestricted submarine warfare and is considered a violation of international law. If any of the American ships that carries supplies to the Red sea was attacked without warning, this government would then be justified under international law in taking steps to protect its maritime commerce on the high seas.

URGE SIMPLER BENEFIT PLAN

Unemployment Council Would Fix New Base Period For Computation.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—A new, simplified formula for figuring unemployment insurance benefits was proposed today by three representatives of the public on the advisory council of the state bureau of unemployment compensation.

They recommended that the weekly benefit be fixed at five per cent of the claimant's actual earnings in the quarter of the highest earnings in his "base period."

The "base period" as defined in the unemployment compensation law is the first eight of the last nine calendar quarters immediately preceding the first week of unemployment.

Several bills pending in the legislature propose to make the "base period" the first four of the last five quarters preceding unemployment.

The recommendation was submitted by Dr. Edison L. Bowers, chairman of the Ohio State university economics department; Rabbi Armond E. Cohen, of the Cleveland Jewish center; and William C. Safford, vice president of the Western and Southern Life Insurance company, Cincinnati.

Their proposal was intended to eliminate the confusion and controversy that has existed since benefit payments started.

The proposal would operate to increase the weekly benefits due some persons who, during their employment period have received regular wages that do not vary from week to week.

SEEK FUND FOR CLOCK WINDER

CORNISH FLAT, N. H—(UP)—The annual drive to raise the $13 salary for the town's clock winder, Charles Crane, is now in high gear.

Crane gets 25 cents a week for winding the clock every five days as well as tolling the bell for Sunday worship and lighting the Baptist church stove.

Official timepiece for the village, the three-faced clock has been ticking since 1882 except for a 30-year interlude.

Seven years ago the townsfolk got together and [illegible] clock and since then have conducted the annual salary campaign.

WARNS FARMERS OF DANGER IN BURNING PASTURES, WOODLOTS

A warning to Richland county farmers against burning off pastures and woodlots was issued today by H. E. Hecker, superintendent of the Ricky Fork CCC camp southeast of Mansfield.

Hecker said a number of farmers in this area have called camp enrollees to help them extinguish grass fires that were out of control.

"Property damage has resulted in some cases, but the real damage is not yet apparent," Hecker said. "From the standpoint of soil and water conservation, burning over pastures and woodlots is wasteful and destructive. Through burning, a considerable amount of the life-giving organic matter in crop residues is completely lost to the soil.

"A thick, productive pasture turf controls erosion almost as completely as virgin prairie or forest, while burned over permanent pastures become thin and weak," the camp superintendent said. "Such a thin turf permits erosion to go on almost unchecked and gullying eventually follows."

Hecker said hay harvested from burned-over meadows will be inferior in quality and usually will contain more weeds than that from unburned areas because the desirable plants will offer less competition. He added that fire weakens the vegetation and often kills the more desirable species.

SAFETY TESTS

Pupils, Teachers In 3 Schools See Demonstrations.

Traffic safety demonstrations, showing the space required to bring an automobile to a stop in the event of an emergency, were conducted yesterday at the Plymouth, Springfield township, and Lexington schools by Charles Lee of the safety department of the Ohio Farm bureau.

Student drivers stopped the test car in 32 feet and nine inches at 20 miles an hour on dry roads. Teachers who made the test stopped the car in 56 feet and three inches when it had been traveling 30 miles an hour.

Lee said the showing was better than the average. He pointed out that at a speed of 40 miles an hour it usually requires at least 125 feet in which to stop the car. Lee lectured briefly on safety measures at the three schools.

Mansfielders were puzzled last night by the spectacular "fireworks" display which lighted the northeastern sky about 9:15 p. m. About 40 bright lights flashed across the sky in varied formations, observers said. The only explanation available was that the lights were a shower of meteors which drifted into the earth's atmosphere and exploded.

FBI EXPECTED TO JOIN HUNT FOR KILLERS

Former Italian Nobleman Shot as He Leaves Car To Look at Tire.

CHICAGO —(INS)— The Federal Bureau of Investigation was believed ready today to join in the hunt for the slayers of John F. Arena, 43-year-old anti-fascist editor of the Chicago Italian language newspaper La Tribuna, who was shot to death on a crowded North Side street last night.

It was reported that Arena, an outspoken foe of fascism who traced his ancestory to Italian nobility, recently had been cooperating with the Dies committee and F. B. I. in an investigation of local un-American activities. In editorials in La Tribuna in recent months he had been carrying on a vigorous campaign against supposed Italian "fifth columnists."

Chicago police, early in their investigation, stated Arena may have been killed "because of his publishing activities." They learned the editor had received many threats against his life for his anti-fascist and anti-fifth column writings. Most of the threats were made by anonymous telephone callers, detectives said.

Arena became an American citizen last year and at that time stated he was renouncing his Italian title, under which he was known as the Marchese D'Arena.

The shooting occurred shortly after 11 o'clock last night a few moments after Arena had emerged from a motion picture theater with Miss Eleanor Herrmeyer, 17. According to Miss Herrmeyer, she and Arena had just seated themselves in the editor's car when a man ran up to them and shouted: "Look out, you've got a flat."

Arena and Miss Herrmeyer stepped from the machine, and as Arena walked behind the car to examine his tires, the stranger opened fire with a revolver.

Arena's wife, Dorothy, 32, the mother of a seven-year-old son, became hysterical when police informed her of the tragedy. She told officers her husband had received many threats against his life recently from unidentified telephone callers. The last threat was received only a few hours before Arena was killed, she said.

Senate Considers Price-Hour Bill For Ohio Barbers

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Legislation authorizing the State Board of Barber Examiners to establish minimum prices and closing hours for barbers as up for a vote today as the general assembly returned to work after a five-day "vacation."

The extended recess was taken to permit the members to celebrate Easter and attend the opening major league baseball games.

The Barber bill, taken up in the senate, also would empower the state board to suspend or revoke the licenses of barbers who failed to abide by the price and hour regulations.

Its author is Sen. O. E. Whitacre of Canton, a retired barber.

Before the house for action was a bill to increase the maximum weekly benefits under the workmen's compensation law from $18.75 to $21 and to raise the maximum death award from $6,500 to $7,000.

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Chappie Geygan is back in the fold and all is well with the Ohio State league. The return of one of the most colorful pilots in the league's history as manager of the Fremont Green Sox was by popular demand, not only of Fremont fans, but of officials of every loop club.

We've got to have Geygan back, was the keynote of the clamor at the recent circuit meeting here in Mansfield.

Seems that Chappie felt he couldn't run his new restaurant in Fremont and the Green Sox too, but Grover Hartley, Findlay manager, had the answer to that.

"You'll be pestered all the time at the ball park by people wanting to see you," said Grover. "Just tell 'em you'll meet 'em later at the restaurant.

"Why, the joint will be packed all night."

Scully Cleland tells this next one, so I'm not responsible. And neither, so I suspect, is he.

* * *

"Now when I was playing in the Texas league," that's Scully talking, not me, and please keep it straight.

"We didn't have any fences, just prairie.

"And when we rapped one over the heads of the outfielders, we could run as far as we could run, round and round the bases again.

"And one day I hit one that went in a prairie dog hole, and I scored 149 runs before they could dig the ball out."

Now that's Scully's story and he's stuck with it, so help me. But it reminds me of the Texas league story Lefty Morris, who pitched for the Great Americans, used to tell.

Lefty had a fork-ball that fitted clear down in the crotch of his second and third fingers, and it was so slow you could walk along and talk to it on the way up to the plate.

And one day Lefty got the thing over the platter but the umps yelled, "Ball one. Ball two. Ball three."

And Lefty waltzed up to find out how come.

"Too slow, too slow," declared his nibs.

And between Scully's fast one, and Lefty's slow one you may find time for a spot of tea. No sugar, please, for mine.

BUCK TRACKSTERS OPEN HOME SKED

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The Ohio State university track team opens its outdoor season at home today against Ohio University. Buckeye Coach Larry Snyder said his squad was in good condition with the exception of Discus Thrower Bob Johnson, Poland, and Hurdler Bob Wright, Huntington, W. Va. A sprained wrist will prevent Johnson from competing, Snyder said. Wright is suffering from a bruised toe but will run in both hurdle events.

Ohio University defeated Ohio Wesleyan 90 to 44 last week.

The Buck baseball team was defeated by Western State Teachers yesterday, 3 to 2, to give the Broncos a clean sweep of the two-game series.

JOCKEY ADMITS HE PULED FOUR MOUNTS

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— Willis Ward, 19-year-old suspended jockey, told a superior court jury he pulled four mounts in one day of the 1939 Hollywood Park season but his fifth horse won despite his efforts to make it lose.

Testifying in the trial of five men on jockey-bribery charges, Ward declared he received $200 for each race he kept his horse from winning. He said he was paid approximately $4,000 for fixing races at Hollywood Park and Del Mar tracks in 1939.

In one seven-horse race at Del Mar on Aug. 18, Ward testified, every rider but one was fixed, and the horse ridden by the unbribed jockey won.

PLAN SPEED EVENTS

DAYTON —(AP)— Hankinson Speedway Enterprises, which has operated under American Automobile Association sanction for the past 25 years and which yesterday affiliated itself with the Central States Racing association, will stage 31 speedway events this season sanctioned by the USRA, Norma Witte, association secretary announced. The 1941 midwestern season will open at Greenville, O., May 4.

SOUTHPAWS SET.

Relays Entries Reach 73

Rooms Needed For Boys Who'll Run Saturday.

Entries for Saturday's Mansfield Relays are pouring in and this morning had reached the 73 mark.

So Harry Mehock, who has been worrying all along about whether he'd have enough entries, is worried now about where to put the boys who'll perform this week-end in Mansfield's biggest sport event of the year.

At least 100 rooms are needed to take care of the boys now on the lists for the classic, and how many more will be needed Mehock can't even guess.

But he's asking everyone who has sleeping space for athletes to call Ralph Chapman at the Y. M. C. A., and he hopes to find room for all the boys Friday night.

A night spent on the park benches is not good training for a track meet, and is not a good reflection on Mansfield's reputation for hospitality, declares Mehock.

Schools added to the list of entries this morning include:

East Palestine, Parkersburg, W. Va., Hoover, Flint, Mich., Akron Buchtel, Jackson Amsden, Fremont Ross, Erie Academy, Dayton Stivers, Ferndale, Mich., Lima Central, Newark, Akron East, Salem, Jas Ford Rhodes, Cleveland, Columbus Central, Akron North, Donora, Pa., Cleveland John Marshall, Canton McKinley, Akron Garfield, Columbus North, Columbus South, Youngstown Boardman, Ashland, Republic, Bellevue, Warren Harding, Castalia, Ashtabula, Cleveland West, Elyria, Lorain, Erie Strong Vincent and Marion Harding.

Mehock's Mansfield High tracksters yesterday edged Ashland 60-58 in a meet at Stadium field. Booked as a test for the Tyger reserves, the meet saw enough regulars in the starting slots to insure the second victory of the season for Mansfield.

TRAUTMAN TALKS TO UMPIRING CORPS

COLUMBUS —(AP)— George M. Trautman, proxy of the American Association, scheduled a session today with his octet of umpires as the last bit of business before the opening contests Thursday.

Last year the association had a 10-man umpiring staff, but this season the number was cut to eight, and three of them are newcomers.

* * *

"There are a flock of little umpiring wrinkles to be ironed out at the meeting," Trautman said. "Otherwise everything is all set for the opening games. The clubs are in fine fettle after the southern training trips, the parks have been manicured until they shine, and if the weather gives us a break we'll have some outstanding crowds for the openers. It looks like a great season."

Connie Mack Chins With Fans, Picks Yanks to Win

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—Connie Mack has been an American league manager for 40 years. No other baseball pilot can even approach that record. Connie has seen the league's greats come and go—Cobb, Johnson, Speaker, Waddell, Plank, Ruth, Pennock, Gehrig and all the rest—and at 78 he still looks forward to winning another pennant with his Athletics.

When the A's play in New York you can find Connie in a back row grandstand seat directly behind the visiting dugout until about 10 miuntes before game time. His son, Earl Mack, gets the pitching instructions early and the old gentleman appears just in time to warm up the scoreboard with which he places his outfielders on location.

During the early practice Connie sits up there in the stands and greets old friends. They know where to find him not only at the Yankee stadium but in other parks.

We found him in his accustomed spot before the opening game. The grandstand was filling rapidly but few of the passing crowd recognized Connie as they scrambled for choice seats.

Mr. McGillicuddy always has something to say—and says it. He likes the Yankees this year but thinks the race will be close.

"I don't like to come right out and pick the Yankees," said the old gentleman with a dry smile. "but I ask you who can beat them? That's what I think, too. But there won't be any runaway race this year. I figure any one of five clubs can win with good breaks. The other three—St. Louis, Washington and my club—may not finish any higher than last year but all three clubs will make some trouble for the five contenders. Its a better balanced league this year than last—and we had our closest race then in some years."

Connie knows the value of pitching.

"One reason why I like the Yankees," he said, "is their young pitchers. I have watched all of them in the minors. Wish I had 'em maybe the old Yankee power is not there any more, but there's plenty of dynamite in McCarthy's batting order. I can't give an opinion on Rizzuto and Priddy until I see them in action. But I know they're good."

TWIN CITIES ROLL IN ABC TOURNAMENT

ST. PAUL —(INS)— The Twin Cities' strongest teams feature tonight's program at the American Bowling congress, with the Hamms of St. Paul and the Minneapolis Star Journals among the five slated for action.

The Hamms in 1934 hung up a record of 3,713 and for four consecutive weeks did not roll less than 3,500 in league competition. Ace of the team is Bill Metcalfe, veteran of 29 A.B.C.'s.

Only one change was registered yesterday among the big 10 leaders. This came when Henry Zeutzius of Green Bay, Wis., hit 1.950 for sixth place in the all-events on series of 605, 656, and 689.

Birds Picked As Favorites

Columbus Seen Winner of Association Race.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—The Columbus Red Birds were selected today by the American Association Chapter of Baseball Writers as the favorites to win the 1941 league pennant.

The results of the fourth annual pre-season poll were announced by League Secretary Frank Colley. Thirty-three writers voted to give the Red Birds a total of 240 points on a basis of eight points for a first place ballot.

Minneapolis received 229 points from the scribes to place second. Kansas City was picked to finish third. The Blues were given 214 points. Louisville was chosen for fourth with 153 points, then came St. Paul, fifth, 142 points; Toledo, sixth, 81 points; Indianapolis, seventh, 79 points; and Milwaukee, eighth, 53 points.

In each of the three previous polls the teams selected by the writers won the flag. The successful choices were St. Paul in 1938, and Kansas City in 1939 and 1940.

The association race gets under way tomorrow with St. Paul playing at Columbus, Minneapolis at Toledo, Milwaukee at Indianapolis, and Kansas City at Louisville.

Surprises Are Rule In Openers

Favored Clubs Knocked Off In Lid Lifters.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

OPENING DAY in the big leagues couldn't have been any more surprising if Judge Landis had shown up at one of the games in a high silk hat.

By now everybody ought to be ready to expect the unexpected from their baseball favorites the first few times out, but it's demanding a lot to ask anyone to foresee such wholesale carnage as seven games produced for 195,389 fans yesterday.

The world champion Cincinnati Reds were whipped 7-3 and Paul Derringer, their ace pitcher, was knocked out of the box by the St. Louis Cardinals.

Bob Feller, whose no-hitter was the sensation of opening day last year, lasted only six innings against the Chicago White Sox this time and the Cleveland Indians were edged out 4-3.

The New York Yankees, after getting a flying start at Washington Monday, were subdued 3-1 by the Philadelphia Athletics with Lovill (Chubby) Dean pitching five-hit ball.

Brooklyn's cocky Dodgers were caught by the New York Giants, who hopped on Whitlow Wyatt for a four-run rally in the eighth inning and won 6-4.

Even the lowly Philadelphia Phillies participated in the surprise party, beating the Boston Bees 6-5 on the four-hit hurling of Cy Blanton, an exile from Pittsburgh.

The nearest approaches to form in the entire day were the Chicago Cubs conquering Pittsburgh 7-4 and the Boston Red Sox squeezing past the Washington Senators 7-6. And even these had their elements of surprise, as did the postponement of Detroit's opening at St. Louis because of rain after many fans already had gathered at the ball park.

The attendance for the seven games was 11,300 better than last year's total for eight contests and apparently proved that interest in baseball is as keen as ever.

With three exceptions pitching was not up to par yesterday and batters reaped a harvest of 133 hits including no less than 14 home runs.

The day's best mound job was Chubby Dean's, who allowed only five hits and didn't let a Yankee get past second until the A's had the game in the bag in the ninth. He was helped considerably by a two-run homer by Sam Chapman, who had hit seven for the circuit in exhibition games.

On opening day last year Dean held the Yanks to six hits and beat them 2-1 by driving in the winning run in the tenth inning. In both games, a year apart, his victim was Red Ruffing.

The four hits Blanton gave up for the Phils included a home run with one on by Max West and another by Eddie Miller with two on, thus accounting for all Boston's runs. Joe Marty and Nick Etten homered for the Phils.

Brooklyn gave its 31,604 followers a premature thrill by taking a 4-0 lead in the first four innings when Prince Hal Schumacher lost control and walked eight men. But young John Rucker put the Giants back in the running with a triple that scored two mates in the fifth and then in the eighth the Giants bunched five hits, two of them doubles, for the victory.

Chicago's triumph over the Pirates rested on a three-run homer by Bill Nicholson in the third. Lou Novikoff, the Cubs' rookie outfielder, went hitless and Lou Stringer, breaking in at shortstop, committed no fewer than four errors.

Dietrich Hit by Feller Pitch

Dazed and bruised, Bill Dietrich, bespectacled Chicago White Sox hurler, lies on the ground while the Sox trainer works over him after one of Bob Feller's fast curves hit him in the first half of the second inning of the opening day game between Chicago and the Cleveland Indians in Cleveland's municipal stadium. A pinch runner was put in for Dietrich, but he returned to pitch in the last half of the inning. In the fifth inning Feller was struck by one of Dietrich's pitches.

STEAM ROLLER NEED STRESSED

Crafton Says Patching of Streets Delayed; Plans Request To Council.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton indicated today that he would ask council to appropriate money for the purchase of a steam roller for the city. At present, the city does not own a roller. One, which was borrowed and used for the past two years, broke down last week while being used to roll the stadium track for the Mansfield relays.

Crafon estimated that a roller would cost between $2,500 and $3,000. He emphasized that it was needed immediately for rolling the city streets, especially where repairs are being done following the construction of water lines. The director also said that a roller could be used on playgrounds and at the city airport.

Crafton said that the lack of a roller and also of hot top material to place in the many patches being made on streets to repair winter damage was holding up the street repair program.

The delay in the delivery of hot top surfacing material, according to Crafton, is caused by the inability of the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company to supply it at once. The company is transferring equipment to Mansfield from its Bloomville plant which it is abandoning.

The company has promised to make sufficient delivery to allow surfacing of the Mulberry street viaduct and the patching of streets. Street workers have also been replacing pavement along the $70,000 Lexington avenue water line and are ready for hot top materials to complete their work, Crafton said.

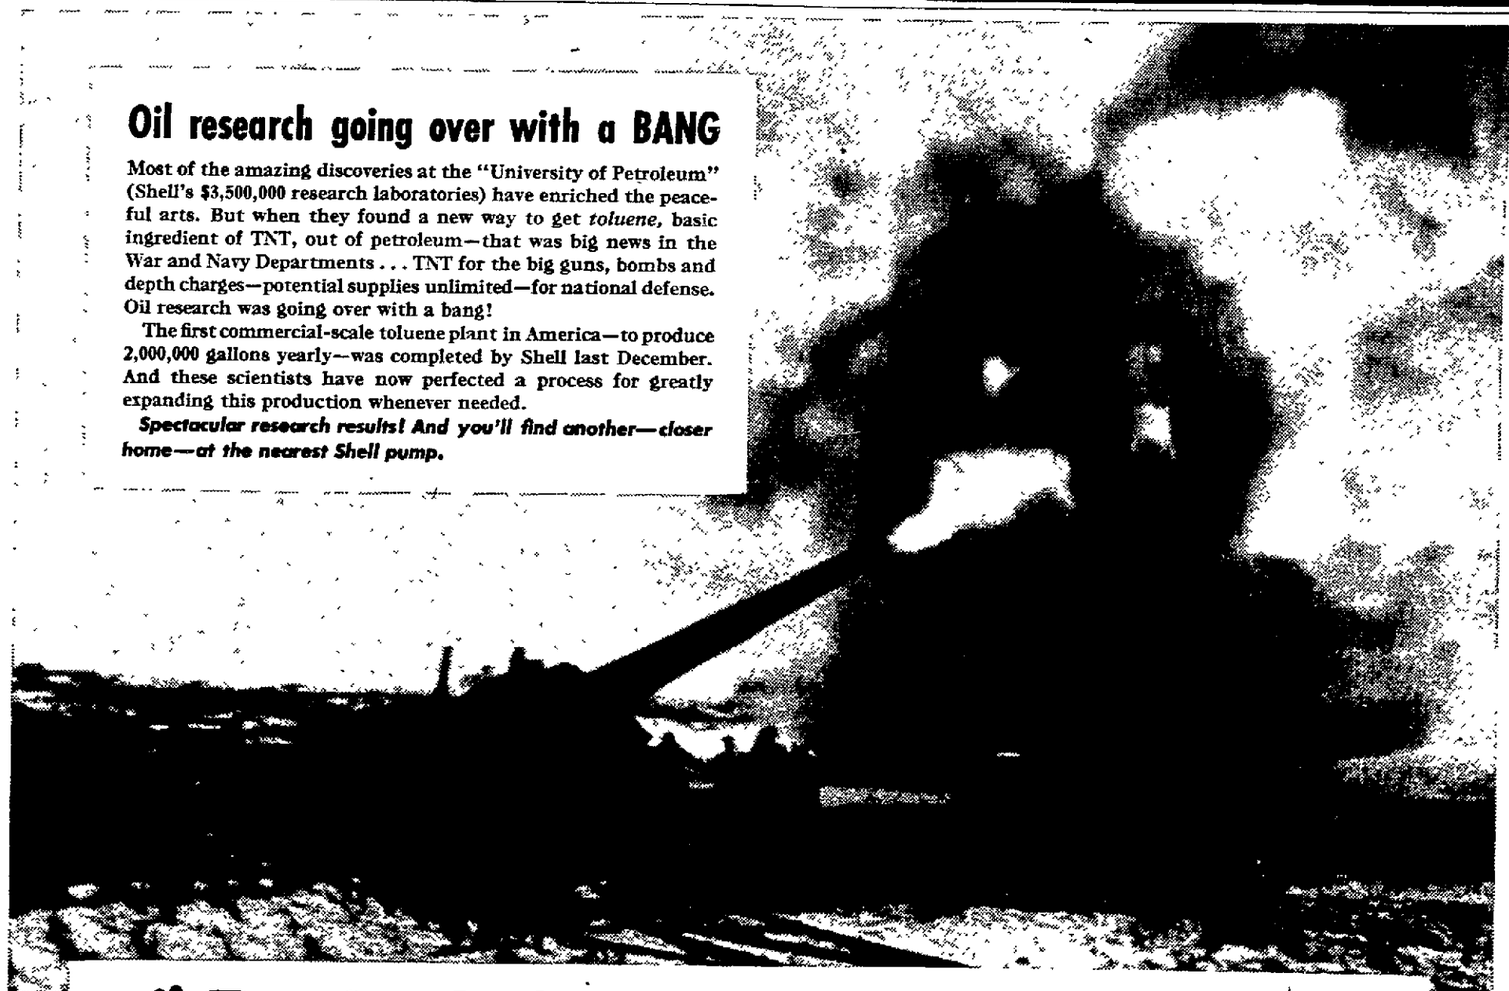
Oil research going over with a BANG

Most of the amazing discoveries at the "University of Petroleum" (Shell's $3,500,000 research laboratories) have enriched the peaceful arts. But when they found a new way to get toluene, basic ingredient of TNT, out of petroleum—that was big news in the War and Navy Departments . . . TNT for the big guns, bombs and depth charges—potential supplies unlimited—for national defense. Oil research was going over with a bang!

The first commercial-scale toluene plant in America—to produce 2,000,000 gallons yearly—was completed by Shell last December. And these scientists have now perfected a process for greatly expanding this production whenever needed.

Spectacular research results! And you'll find another—closer home—at the nearest Shell pump.



"Fuel of the Future" today
NEW Solutized SHELL

SHELL scientists found a key to production from petroleum of synthetic rubber—glycerine—plastics—fertilizers—germicides—even a key product which enters Vitamin E. Now they've advanced the Road Performance Rating (RPR) of Shell Gasoline to an all-time high:

1 It is refined with the Solutizer Process (originated at Shell's research laboratories, Patent No. 2,149,379). This steps up performance by removing the "pro-knock mercaptans" which have always been a drag on performance.

2 Thermal conversion makes it extra rich in iso-compounds similar to iso-octane—first produced commercially by Shell scientists to give America 100-octane aviation gasoline . . . fuel so powerful and efficient that it led to an increase in the speed and flying range of America's planes up to 30%!

These two factors save on the costliest driving you do—Stop-and-Go. And increased RPR puts a new thrill in your motoring! Your Shell dealer has new Solutized Shell (at regular price) and Shell Premium—try a tankful today!

CHAPTER XXVII

They strolled through the garden where every variety of tropical fruit and flower was exhibited by nature's lavish hand. Bright-plumaged birds trilled sharply as they winged their way into the blue heavens.

"It's so beautiful and so peaceful," Joan whispered.

Paul held her hand tightly. "Be patient, dear. Just a little while longer and everything will be cleared up, and when we're married I promise you I'll take a vacation and there won't be a single mystery to solve."

"Oh Paul, could you do that?"

"I think so. You can start planning your honeymoon, Mrs. O'Malley."

"Darling, I don't care where we go just so we aren't being followed, or," she added laughing, "following someone else."

"Not a single person," Paul promised, "I'll guarantee to be under foot every hour. You'll probably be tired of seeing me around so much."

"Not a chance," Joan declared, smiled up at him. "And another thing. I want you to promise you won't put any more sleeping powders in my tea. I might miss something."

'It's a deal, if you'll promise not to carry any more concealed weapons."

Then she was serious. "I didn't tell you about the gun because I was afraid you'd take it away from me. I didn't want to use it, but when I saw Karl was going to shoot you, I had to do something. I love you so much Paul! I'd do anything . . . anything."

And there in the sleepy sunlit garden he drew her into his arms.

During the next three days Joan's fortitude began to waver. It seemed so ridiculously simple for them to escape. There was a train three times a week to Nogales, the border. None of Karl's men had appeared; indeed Joan had not seen any other Americans at all. A few Mexican business men were staying at the hotel and several honeymoon couples, but outside of them no one seemed to even speak English. Several times Joan had passed the small American consulate. If Paul would only let her go in and explain things surely the consul would help them. But Paul did not want help, she remembered. He wanted to see the thing through by himself. She understood his devotion to duty, but in her heart she longed to escape, to go home, to be married, to give up the chase which seemed to grow more dangerous and futile all the time.

"I don't know why I'm sticking round here," Thomas complained as the three of them sat in the deserted hotel bar watching the shafts of sunshine fall through grilled iron windows.

"You're staying because you're afraid to leave," Paul said, "and you're smart enough to realize it."

Joan leaned her elbows on the smooth, old-fashioned round table. "But if Karl's men are here, why don't they do something? What are they waiting for?"

Paul looked into her earnest young face, her searching green eyes. She looked like a little girl with her black hair tucked up on her head like that. She trusted him completely. She was more sure of him than he was of himself. For a moment he wondered how he could lead her into more trouble. He wondered what she would do if he told her the truth. If he said, 'J'oan, I don't know what's going to happen next; I'm just following my hunches . . ." But Paul O'Malley was not the type of man to admit defeat, especially before it took place. He had come through worse scrapes than this.

Aloud he said, "Keep your chin up, honey! It won't be long!"

"That's what you said three days ago." Thomas reminded him. "This place is driving me crazy." He looked around the empty bar in disgust. The bartender dozed. The warm sweet air was heavy and languorous. "Where is everybody?"

"Didn't you ever hear of a siesta?" Paul inquired.

"I've heard of it," Thomas said. "But people who have Karl Miller's gang after them aren't apt to waste time taking siestas. Not for me. But look here, why don't we get out of here?"

"Maybe he's right," Joan urged. "We could try it anyway, couldn't we?"

"Nothing doing. I'm sorry you two have to stay but it isn't safe for you to leave alone. Believe me, it wouldn't work."

Thomas sighed. "Okay, if you say so. . . . Bartender!" he yelled, "bring me another bottle of beer."

The bartender shook his head, muttered 'Si, senor," and hurried over with the beer. But at the sight of Joan he paused reflectively.

"You are Miss Joan Leland? Yes?"

"Why?" Paul asked flatly.

The bartender broke into Spanish. There was a torrent of words and gestures.

"What does he say?" Joan asked.

"It seems there was a man looking for you here. An American. He gave him ten pesos to get information about you. He doesn't know what his name was though."

"Karl?"

"Not a chance. Karl wouldn't be apt to row all the way to shore. And the ship isn't in sight. I've been watching to see."

"But who in the world could it have been?"

The bartender, feet on the bar, had returned to his siesta.

"What a country!" Thomas muttered. "If someone wanted Joan, why didn't they telephone the hotel? We're all registered under our own names."

Paul laughed. "This is what is known as the subtle approach."

"Paul! Be serious!" Joan insisted.

"Okay." Paul said, leaning forward and surveying her with his kind brown eyes. "It's probably one of Karl's men. They want to get the idea across that they're around, and this is their way of doing it. They may want to make further contact with you. I don't know. They're probably picking on you instead of me as a gentle warning that if anything goes wrong, you'll be the one to pay for it. However, that's looking at it in the worst possible light." He took her hand. "Don't worry, honey. I'll do all I can."

"Maybe Karl has some Mexicans working for him," Thomas suggested.

"I don't think so. Besides, this man spoke English, and if he had been able to speak Spanish he certainly would have done so, because the bartender was barely able to understand him.

"So now we start waiting all over again?" Thomas asked.

"That's about it."

They went for a long walk that afternoon through the narrow sunny streets of Mazatlan. They saw perfume shops, the general merchandise stores where silver, yard goods and weaving were displayed. They saw the market place where almost everything from dolls to fresh meat was exhibited in wild array on the crowded counters. Each merchant chanted the values of his particular wares. There were toy animals woven of straw, blue glass mugs of all sizes, baskets, hats, shoes, fruit, bolts of flowered cotton. Once Joan saw a huge snake contentedly winding itself behind a large pottery jar.

She shivered. "Let's go," she urged.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour 2 pints of bile juice into your bowels every day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Then gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these 2 pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Get a package today. Take as directed. Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. 10¢ and 25¢.

WORMS MAY BE A REASON

Why Your Child Can't Gain Weight

Face the facts: It's easy for anybody, anywhere, to "catch" roundworms. And if the awful creatures are living and growing inside your child, that may be why the youngster is pale, thin, nervous. Other signs of worms are itching nose or seat, uneasy stomach, fingernail biting.

Act now! Drive out roundworms before they can "get set" and cause trouble! Use Jayne's Vermifuge—America's best known proprietary worm medicine — scientifically tested and proved by over a century of use, in millions of cases. Jayne's expels stubborn worms, yet acts very gently. If there are no worms, it works merely as a mild laxative. Insist on Jayne's Vermifuge.

Tortures of Nervous Indigestion Soon Relieved by Jolo

Piqua Resident After Continued Suffering From Acid Indigestion, Sour Stomach, Gas, Cramps and Other Troubles Due to Constipation, Advises Others to Try This Medicine.

JOLO gives the most satisfying relief from constipation, sharpens the appetite for wholesome food to replenish the blood, helps cleanse the body of wastes which in turn promotes a rapid return of tone throughout the body. Mrs. Florence Nawman of 128 N. Downing St., Piqua, Ohio, tells of her happy experience as follows:

"I was a constant sufferer from constipation which often caused acid indigestion, and most everything I ate seemed to sour in my stomach. I'd get me with gas and my head would ache. Sometimes I had a lump in my throat which I couldn't get rid of. My breath would be sour and nerves so upset I couldn't half sleep. I was generally miserable. My mother was using JOLO and it seemed to help her so I started taking it. It worked fine. I got relief from constipation, so that all the other troubles caused by or due to constipation soon disappeared. JOLO gave me more energy and built me up so I feel like a new person and after what JOLO did for me I believe it will every one suffering as I did."

STOCK MARKET SHOWS FORMER STAND TODAY

Shares Rally as Settlement of Strikes Helps Improve Sentiment.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market took a firmer stand today after an opening gesture toward continuation of the April retreat.

U. S. Steel, Chrysler, American Telephone and other leading shares rallied to show fractional gains near the second hour.

Bonds and commodites were mixed in generally narrow markets.

Settlement of strikes appeared to have improved market sentiment. Allied setbacks in the Balkans and northern Africa, however, were rated against a resurgence of optimism.

Announcement of additional wage increases in steel and other industries again brought up discussion in market circles of the possibility profits might be squeezed hard by higher operating costs and taxes.

Cited as an indicator of the squeeze on profits was the disclosure at the General Electric Stockholders' gathering that the company's profits in the first quarter were down somewhat compared with the initial period of 1940 despite record-breaking sales.

DESPERATE MEN HOLD POWER IN FRANCE TODAY

Writer Reveals Five Per Cent of Population Bank on Nazi Victory.

it. They seem a people grown old and weary, no longer possessing that vitality and sense of national pride necessary to maintaining an empire or a first place in the world, but rather only a desire to retire to the comforts of old age.

But the appalling fact that dawns on you gradually and finally hits you right between the eyes is that France and America, though non-belligerent, are working on opposite sides in a war for the first time since the French and Indian wars in the early eighteenth century.

France today, against the will of 95 per cent of her population, is the ally of Germany in every practical sense short of the military. In other words, economically and industrially.

This talk about collaboration or non-collaboration in Vichy is eye-wash. Collaboration is a fact, and has been for months. About 90 per cent of French industry is working on German order. There is no choice. It is work for German order or shut down because of inability to obtain raw materials, or because of strangling German restrictions The bulk of French industry is located in the occupied two-thirds of the country.

Moreover, there is danger that collaboration will be carried to even greater lengths. One of the keenest men I know in France, who for obvious reasons cannot be named, told me:

"I think that before this war is ended, it is entirely possible that France and America may be belligerents on opposing sides."

While 95 per cent of the population are anti-German and hope for a British victory, they are passive. The other, pro-German 5 per cent have all the power of German propaganda and German arms behind them. They are aggressive, ambitious men who have bet not only their careers, but their very lives on German victory. They are desperate and will stop at nothing to see England defeated.

Pierre Laval, for example, knows and admits to friends that his life is forfeit unless the German victory is complete.

Most dangerous man at the moment, however, is Admiral Jean Francis Darlan, who, as vice-premier, nominated successor to Marshal Petain's dictatorship, minister of navy, foreign affairs and interior, is the current "strong man" of unoccupied France.

Darlan has become power-mad and will drag the French fleet into the war against England if he can manage it, according to sober opinion in both Vichy and Paris.

Around the first of the year Darlan had a secret meeting with Hitler in the north of France, details of which have never been published.

Although official sources deny this, I learned from an absolutely reliable authority that Hitler at that time gave Darlan a written memorandum. The memorandum was purported to have said, in effect:

"We have not the slightest interest in the internal politics of France, we are at the moment concerned with much more important things. But, we are interested in the role France will have to play in the new order at the conclusion of the war. And we shall be watching with interest how she, in the meantime, feeds her population, manages her fleet and her colonies and keeps her sea lines open Upon the way in which she discharges these responsibilities of a sovereign state will we judge her position and rights after the war"

The implication was clear. The admiral came back to Vichy full of beans and spinach He redoubled his denunciations of the British, for whom he makes no effort to conceal his enmity He began talking openly for the first time of sailing against the British unless they ceased taking French ships.

In March he went to Paris where he conferred with Laval Abetz, and General Keitel Upon his return to Vichy he announced the French fleet would convoy its merchant ships if any more were halted by the British blockade. This was an extremely clever move. For while it is extremely unlikely that Darlan could hand over the fleet outright to the Germans, or order it to sail against the British—it is believed a fleet would mutiny before accepting such orders—it is quite likely that the order to convoy French merchant ships would be obeyed. The real question. The end result would be the same—confusion in the Royal Navy.

American and British diplomacy took the wind out of the admiral's sails at this time with the announcement that food ships would be sent from America, provided there was American control of distribution

There is much hardship and deprivation in France, but really serious suffering, on a widespread scale, is not expected until next winter. There will be a grave food shortage then

If food is permitted to pass the blockade, Germany undoubtedly will be helped, for the Germans are steadily seizing a portion of the imports that come into Marseilles and Germany continues to requisition foodstuffs in the unoccupied area. But if the blockade is clamped on, the people who will starve will be the friends of the Allies and the helpless poor. You can be sure the pro-German five per cent won't go hungry. They get everything they need now, and more, and "sans ticket" at that.

ALLIES STIFFEN TO NAZI RUSH ON GREEK FRONT

Germans Admit Stubborn Foe Holds Up Drive at Olympus Line.

too, that the Allies were rallying to a stonewall defense after the Nazi break-through.

After jubilantly declaring that the campaign in Greece was becoming a "rout," the Germans subsequently admitted that the blitzkrieg invasion was now meeting "stubborn opposition," and a Nazi spokesman in Berlin said laconically:

"The Balkan war has entered upon a new phase.

"Our army has succeeded in compelling the British forces in Greece to make a stand and face us in combat. We have crossed their plans."

This appeared to be an oblique admission that the British were not planning a "Dunkerque" flight from Greece, as Berlin propaganda had previously asserted

Hitler's high command said fast Nazi mechanized forces "in sharp pursuit" of British and Greek troops "forced the enemy to fight near Mt. Olympus and the mountains west of here."

German Stuka dive-bombers were said to have inflicted heavy losses on the Allies "retreating south of Servia," a town 18 miles northwest of Mt. Olympus.

On the north African battlefront, the British reported they had "successfully attacked" German panzer columns striking into Egypt, in the Fort Capuzzo sector, in Libya, just across the frontier from Salum, Egypt.

Hitler's high command said briefly that a thrust in the Salum area by British armored units, supported by warships, had been repulsed. Salum is near the coast.

A Rome communique noted "Operations near Salum are continuing, as well as the investment of the fortified place of Tobruk (Libya), where the enemy is defending himself fiercely, supported by naval units."

The British expressed increased optimism that the Axis drive toward the Suez Canal had been slowed or stopped.

In the Balkan campaign, British middle east headquarters announced that British troops "are now in contact with the enemy along the whole of our front" in Greece.

Dispatches from Athens, which indicated the defense front had been hammered into an almost straight line across the peninsula from Mt. Olympus to Chimara, pictured the British-held right wing at the fabled Mountain of the Gods as standing firm.

The Nazi commentary Dienst Aus Duetschland hinted that resistance in the Balkans may collapse soon declared the trapped Yugoslav army has "no alternative but to surrender" and added that when this happens "it certainly will not be without the most important reactions on Greek decisions."

A Greek spokesman said last night the Nazis had forced a way through mountains 6,000 feet high to the western outlet of Statista Pass opening on a corridor of flatter country to the south.

This acknowledgement, linked with German and Italian claims, indicated the fighting line now extends from Mt Olympus west past Servia and Statista, northeast to the vicinity of Kastoria, then southeast to the Albanian part of Chimara

Reported occupation of Argos as main naval base of [illegible]

In the air war on the western European front, German bombers gave northern Ireland its second intense wide-spread attack, and the British bombed the north German naval base at Kiel for the 38th time since the start of the war.

A German broadcast said in Belfast described the Luftwaffe's attack on northern Ireland as "severe and indiscriminate" in effect and said heavy damage had been done and casualties must have been large

Raids on England were termed as having caused some damage to property and relatively few casualties. Liverpool was among the large cities heavily attacked

Reports from Berlin said two persons were killed others injured, two buildings destroyed in British bombings of northern Germany

In the far east it was reported that despite Soviet Russia's new 5-year non-aggress on accord with Japan, Moscow has informed the Central Chinese government that Russian aid to China in her fight against Japan will continue.

Domei, Japanese news agency, broadcast a report that attacks by British troops along Thailand's Malayan frontier has provoked a protest by the Thai government to British authorities.

Presumably, the British troops included many thousands of Australians who were rushed to the defense of Singapore, Britain's great naval base, and thence to the Malayan-Thailand frontier when it was feared Japan might attempt to strike at Singapore via Thailand.

came in, more than half the national production would be accounted for.

Northern operators were reported willing to pay the $7 scale asked by the union.

An outburst of violence, centering around the mine dispute, took four more lives in Kentucky yesterday, bringing the death toll to nine during the course of the tie-up. More gunfire, but no deaths, were reported in the mining country around Widen, W. Va.

Anthracite operators and CIO-UMW representatives were in New York, too, awaiting settlement of the soft coal dispute before getting down to business on a new hard coal contract, to replace an agreement expiring April 30.

About 400,000 miners are affected by the soft coal negotiations, compared with 100,000 in the anthracite fields

The steel industry continued to have its labor troubles, despite the action of many companies, large and small, in raising employes' wages 10 cents an hour

Union employes of the Stanley Works, Bridgeport, Conn., steel plant, struck last night for a similar increase. CIO steel workers organizing committee agents scheduled a conference today with officials of Jones and Laughlin Steel corporation to extend the wage hike to that firm's 24,000 employes A unit of the same union called a strike against the plants of the Birdsboro Steel Foundry and Machine company at Reading and Birdsboro, Pa., because, leaders said an independent union in the plants refused to agree to a bargaining election. The company already had announced a 10-cent wage increase.

More than 1,400 CIO employes rejected a proposal that they return to work at the Phelps-Dodge Copper Products corporation plant at Elizabeth, N. J., pending negotiation of their demands for wage benefits and a union shop

Appalachian mills at Knoxville, Tenn., were shut down after a strike which an AFL representative said was called over "general plant conditions."

The CIO farm equipment workers organizing committee asked International Harvester company for immediate wage increases of 10 cents an hour at eight of the firm's midwestern factories Employes returned to work at four of the plants March 31, after the defense mediation board had agreed to negotiate settlement of strikes.

Meanwhile, Rep. Ditter (R. Pa.) declared in a broadcast from the nation's capital that the country had lost about 14,000,000 man-days by strikes since last June — enough man-hours, he said, to have built 6,000 pursuit planes, or 1,200 bombers, or 86 submarines, or 74 destroyers."

At Wellston, O., the Frick-Gallagher Manufacturing company plant remained closed as 100 employes continued their one-day-old strike for wage increases from $3.20 to $4.00 a day and recognition of length of service with the company.

The strikers are presenting their demands through local union No 2334 of the Steel Workers Organizing company (CIO), recognized as the bargaining agent of the company.

Although pickets were placed around the plant, H. C Johnson of Portsmouth, international representative of the CIO, promised that there would be no violence houte, for transshipment to British forces operating in Africa and Greece.

Senator Byrnes (D-SC) said he saw no reason why naval vessels should not escort freighters into the Red sea if the need for such action arose, but other foreign relations committeemen questioned whether the navy would attempt to protect shipping so far from home and claimed there was no necessity for such action at present.

The convoy question bobbed up in the senate yesterday when Tobey said he feared that "behind the scenes" moves were being made to use the navy on escort duty.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 16, 1941.

Whatever April may have in store is at least half over with.

It's nip-and-tuck right now between civilization and barbarism, and the shrewd Eskimos are moving farther north.

It takes all kinds of people—including the man who joins his wife's church because it has the same heaven and a smaller debt.

Why Pattern After Failure?

FOR NEARLY a quarter of a century, some of the smart folks who write books and deliver lectures, have been telling of the great things to be expected from Soviet Russia. It was to be a workers' paradise. The capitalistic system was destroyed. The government became supreme, and the individual was a pawn of the state.

A quarter of a century is a long time. But if one can believe the record, results in Russia have been in reverse, rather than forward.

The principal idea of Russian communism is that government should own all means of production and distribution—all natural resources were taken from private enterprise and left to government to develop. Russia seized everything from private individuals. What has been the result? Want, starvation, stagnation, terrorism.

And, yet, in our own country, with Russia as an example to go by, we have those who would do, slyly and gradually, what was done in Russia ruthlessly and at one bold stroke.

If we are to learn anything from the object lesson of Russia, it should be to scrutinize all the laws of this land and discover to what extent our country is being influenced by Soviet ideas.

Convicts Who Kill While Escaping

WHATEVER opinions may be held on the general subject of capital punishment, it seems unlikely that many would hold to the view that the death penalty should not be inflicted in such cases as that of the Sing Sing prison escapees who were recaptured after having killed a guard and an Ossining policeman during their brief freedom.

The death penalty is still available in New York state, as a means of exterminating such dangerous characters, but Michigan, and other states that have abolished capital punishment, can do nothing more than impose life imprisonment and remain constantly on guard to prevent repetition of murderous attacks on guards during escape attempts.

The death penalty may be indefensible, from an idealistic viewpoint, but in dealing with conditions as they are, rather than considering what we might like them to be, it appears that the stage of civilization has not yet been reached at which capital punishment can be safely abandoned in the extreme cases for which it is intended.

Those Polish Flyers In England

AMERICANS have been interested in frequent news references to Polish flyers and troops in Great Britain and with British forces on various war fronts. Only recently has the dramatic story of their presence with the British been told.

During the days just preceding the French surrender last summer the Germans were told to "take no Polish prisoners." There were three divisions of the Polish army distributed through the French forces and 5,000 Polish flyers. General Sikorski, the Polish commander in chief, was with them.

When Prime Minister Churchill, on June 16, heard of the German order, he sent a bomber to France with instructions to bring back Sikorski "even if you find him surrounded by Germans." It was a hard assignment, but the British flyers carried it out.

When the general was assured that Churchill intended to get as much of the Polish army out of France as was humanly possible, Sikorski flew to London to make plans. In the presence of a British general and some admiralty officers, the general told just where various units of his army were located and what French ports they would try to reach. Then he returned to his men in France, and the British navy, in the face of great difficulties, went after the Polish troops. More than a third of them were thus salvaged from the wreck of the French war machine.

High Cost of Sustaining Rats

PEOPLE may not have been taking rats seriously enough. the Fish and Wildlife Service of the department of the interior, completing a study of rats in the United States, reports that there are 123,000,000 of them in this country and that they cause losses of $189,000,000 a year.

Rats spread disease and destroy property. The common house rat, at one time or another, has caused bubonic plague, typhus fever, spirochetal jaundice, rat-bite fever, food poisoning, tularemia, rabies, trichinosis and other diseases.

In agricultural regions the rats eat grains and kill poultry. They even attack larger farm animals. In cities they eat foodstuffs and gnaw their way through containers to get at them. They wreck cartons of packaged foods in grocery stores. They devour food chiefly but also gnaw and destroy soap, paint, bone and leather, silk, upholstery and anything else that meets their eye. They have caused fires by gnawing electric wires.

A national drive to destroy rats may be necessary, if citizens do not see the danger soon enough to take effective action on their own premises.

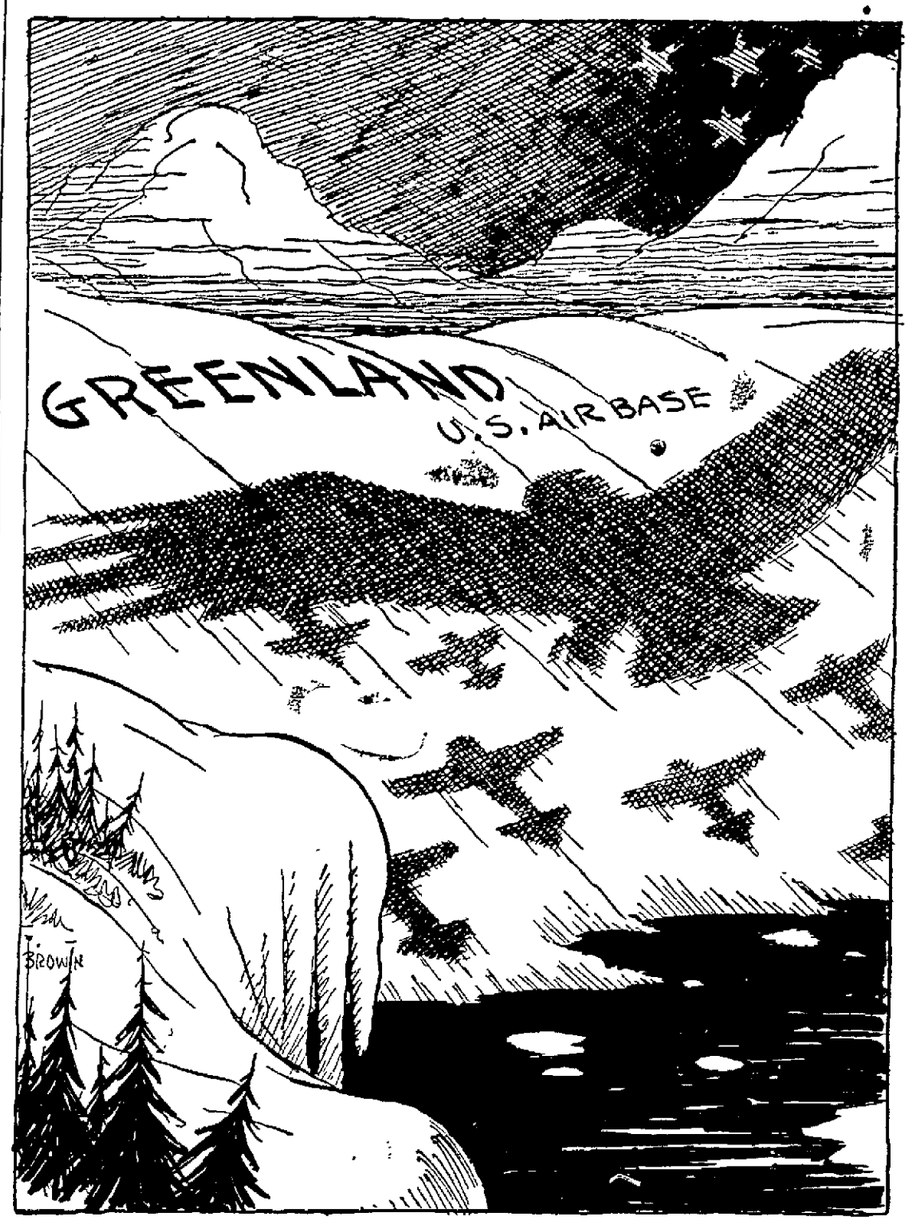
Plastics From Surplus Coffee

BRAZIL has been carrying on some interesting experiments in the manufacture of useful plastics from surplus coffee. If these succeed at least one troublesome trade problem should be brought nearer solution and burning coffee surpluses will end.

In an experimental plant in Brazil which has achieved encouraging results in its research, the chief product made is called "cafelite." There are a number of by-products which also appear marketable.

The more industrial products the Latin neighbors begin to make, the more they'll sell, and the better they'll be able to pay their employes who, in turn, will then be able to consume more goods and foodstuffs formerly denied to the very poor. It is the beginning of a constructive circle which might have been set moving long ago if people of North America had known more about South America.

COMING EVENTS CAST THEIR SHADOWS BEFORE



Congressmen Fall for 'Con' Game

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—For the con-men, it's always open season on congressmen.

The jobs of senators and members of the house (and for that matter, any other persons who hold their posts by popular election) are no more secure than their reputations. To become involved in a shady transaction or to be caught playing the goat for some wolf with a slick confidence game is almost political death.

The con-men know this. The congressmen know it. It makes the congressman wary and a hard nut to crack. It makes the smart con-men willing only to try their slickest tricks around Washington. The risk is great, but once they have gotten inside and over the first hurdle, they feel pretty safe—for no politician can afford to raise any hue and cry over the fact that he has played dumb.

It isn't often that congressmen will even whisper off-the-record when they have been bilked by some sharper—but by whispering at least among themselves, they have just broken up a smooth bit of chicanery that for a few days threatened to spread all over the place. I'll tell you the story.

Worked Several Times.

THE game was worked several times — just how many not even members of congress themselves know—but just let someone try it today and he will find himself rattling the bars for exercise.

A bright well-dressed young man put in his appearance at the congressman's office. He was from the congressman's state. He was a personal friend (or his father was) of some of the congressman's most powerful political allies.

He chatted about them amiably and intimately. He brought the latest bits of gossip and news about them and their families. The conversation ran on to personal things.

The young man, it seems, was in Washington and in Baltimore and Philadelphia on business. He had inherited quite a fortune. He had just invested it in a large importing business. In a boat which was docked at Baltimore the young man had acquired a large quantity of Scotch whisky.

"I'm not in the whisky business," he explained, "and because I am now on the go all the time, I have no use for it myself. Because so-and-so back home thinks so much of you and because I think so much of him, I'd like to give you half a dozen cases."

Appreciated It.

NOW even if the congressman weren't a drinking man, how could he refuse a thing like that—a gift from a friend of a friend and with absolutely no axe to grind. He appreciated it very much.

"All right," said the young man, "that's settled then. I'll have it sent down to you." He started to leave, then said: "Oh, I almost forgot. You don't mind paying the duty, do you. It's just $5.50 a case?"

No, the congressmen didn't mind. He would write a check. He did. And except for the cancelled check, which had been cashed within the hour, that was the last seen or heard of the bright young man. If you think $33 is a paltry sum for so much trouble, remember that it could be worked many times in a day, and many times that in a week or so.

This is just the latest gag that the con-men have thought up to harass poor congressmen. There have been others down through the years, ranging from blackmail to petty touches from men who represent themselves as political down-and-outers. Oddly enough, a scheme somewhat similar to the whisky trick as worked some years ago with fine English tweeds.

A congressman's life is not an easy one, even if the electorate doesn't let him down.

Loom o' the Lights

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THE loom o' the lights"—it's an old sea phrase that a sailing man once told me, and often I've blessed him for its comfort in these bewildering days.

Indeed, it was for just such a time that the phrase was invented. Night, and a smother of darkness over the tumbling deep. Somewhere ahead the land must lie but there is no signal yet through the darkness . . . only the wail of the wind . . . the stinging scud of the foam. With the yearning eyes straining, straining for the first, faint sign of home.

Then, sudden as a heartening hail it comes, that glow fanning over the shore—"the loom o' the lights." Not just the flare of a city's night-time fires but the certain signal that the old and heartening things still stand secure for those who've tossed too weary long upon the sea.

"The loom o' the lights"—never have men needed so badly to see them as we're needing now. For there's something more bitter than scudding sea spray blinding our eyes and something more deadly than surf or undertow battering our lives. There's a black madness of hate whirling round us and a darker agony of doubt and despair wearing the hearts out of us. For all that we thought was sure and simple has been swept away, and all that seemed true and enduring is lost in the rack of the storm.

Was it all just a childish dream, that life we so loved once? Were they only empty words, those ideals to which we clung—Kindness, Courage, Honor, Purity, Generosity? Was Sacrifice a foolish waste, and Faith a snare and delusion? Was there nothing fundamentally good in life, and no sure haven for those who did their best?

We're all asking these questions today. Be we "rich man, poor man, beggar man or thief," we're all feeling the tempest and terror of a world that is lost in the night. Staring into the darkness, straining for an answer, we feel doubt shaking us to our depths. And though we may never have prayed before, and have no church or creed, there's a desperate clamor in us for some sign of security: something that will give us strength to carry on.

Then out of the night they come, gleaming through the dark, the lovely loom o' the lights. No city lights, these, but the tall and shining record of brave and gentle human acts which have stood and always will stand steady against any storm of doubt and hate.

Small things and obscure they may have seemed at the time they were done. A mother's quiet, comforting service. A plain man's dogged, unselfish devotion. An unrewarded sacrifice that never found its way into words. A lonely struggle against weakness. A laugh that hid the misery of a shaken heart. A faith that persevered when every hope seemed gone. Not great acts or spectacular, nor acts that seemed to weigh much against the mass of savagery. Yet now they flame against the darkness, lighting the way to port. And, seeing them, our stupid hearts fight on.

For here is the answer for which we have asked, given in terms which we can understand, not in some militant miracle of steel and flame or supernatural might, but in the simple acts of common creatures like ourselves who loved and dared plain goodness for its beauty's sake.

Here is the evidence which we can clutch and show, the lasting proof that decency goes on—AND THAT BEHIND ALL DARKNESS LOOM THE LIGHTS OF HOME!

FDR Holds Perkins Resignation, Hesitates To Drop Old Friends

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—There is only one reason why Secretary Frances Perkins continues in the cabinet as head of the department of labor. That reason is Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

Though it's an inner circle secret, Miss Perkins' resignation has been on his desk for more than a month. Why he hasn't done anything about it in the face of widespread demands for a stronger labor secretary, including some from his closest advisers, is known only to him.

Intimates attribute it to the president's inability to give the gate to old friends, no matter how much they embarrass him.

For a long time Miss Perkins seemed unaware of her unpopularity. But in recent months it apparently dawned on her. To give the president freedom of action to replace her (a degree of sincerity in marked contrast to certain of her former colleagues), she tendered her resignation.

His failure to name a successor cannot be attributed to lack of material. Three top-notch New Dealers of proven ability are available—Solicitor General Francis Biddle, who was chairman of the original National Labor Board; William H. Davis, vice chairman of the National Defense Mediation Board, who has had extensive experience in the labor field, and Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York.

Meanwhile, the president has quietly tightened up Miss Perkins' handling of defense labor disputes. She is under strict orders to certify immediately to the Mediation Board all cases recommended by OPM chiefs. Purpose of this is to end her Conciliation Service's domination of her decisions on whether to certify a controversy or not.

Poet-Politician.

LIBRARIAN of Congress Archibald MacLeish is one of the great poets of the country, but he also is no slouch as a politician.

The house committee investigating migrant labor has been particularly interested in the problem of overcrowding in defense industry towns. Recently the committee itself ran up against the same problem. It needed more office space.

Chairman John M. Tolan of California, hearing there were some vacant study rooms in the new annex of the library of congress, asked MacLeish if the committee might use them.

"Why, Congressman," beamed MacLeish, "I've been studying your subject for years. In fact, I wrote a poem about it. Have you read it? Wait. I'll get a copy."

He sent for a volume of his famous poem, "Land of the Free," and read some of its stirring passages to Tolan, who enjoyed the rare recitation immensely. Afterwards, MacLeish presented the volume with a charming autograph to his thrilled visitor, then concluded by giving him more space than he had requested.

Irish Arms.

THE VISIT to Washington of Irish Defense Minister Frank Aiken, on an arms purchasing mission, was no boon to congressmen of Irish descent who voted against lend-lease.

He has pointedly avoided them, and instead gone out of his way to hobnob with the members of congress who supported the bill—particularly house Democratic Leader John McCormack, who sponsored the measure, and Representative Jim McGranery of Pennsylvania.

The tall, genial Irish minister has been eloquent in praise of British courage and President Roosevelt's policy of making the United States the "arsenal of democracy." He wants to draw on that arsenal to arm Ireland against the Nazi menace.

The Irish are as adamant as ever, Aiken says, against turning over their urgently desired bases to the British. But he points out that Ireland is Britain's "bread basket," having provided one-third of its food, considerable clothing, and other necessities since the war began.

Ireland proposes to mobilize an army to battle off any Nazi attacks, if the necessary equipment can be obtained from Britain and the United States. Britain has agreed to furnish some, and Aiken hopes to get the rest here. He says he has "several hundred million dollars" to spend for anti-aircraft guns, tanks, rifles, ammunition; also for wheat and food.

Note—Ireland has an army of 250,000 volunteers, but only 25,000 are properly equipped and garrisoned. Most of the men are local "security guards," who train only once a week. Aiken believes that if Ireland can get sufficient equipment to place 250,000 men on a permanent military footing, they will be able to ward off a Nazi attack with British help in the air.

Lend-Lease Kingpin.

KINGPIN in directing the lend-lease program is Harry Hopkins, gaunt intimate of the president.

Living and working in the White House, Hopkins is Roosevelt's personal spokesman on all lend-lease matters and holds all the reins. No move is made without his knowledge and approval. In inner circles Hopkins is referred to as lend-lease "co-ordinator," but actually he is the boss-man for the president.

Hopkins' chief assistant is Major General James H. Burns, one of the army's procurement aces. Burns acts as liaison with the army on the allocation of supplies to be sent to the Allies; with the British Purchasing Commission; and with the Army-Navy Standardization Committee on working out differences between U. S. and British equipment.

The test in passing on Allied requests for supplies is whether they will also be useful for our own defense. The government's policy is to provide all equipment and materials possible, but not to disrupt our own defense program.

An example of the emphasis on standardization of the armament of the U. S. and Britain was a recent request for 3.7-mm. shells. It was turned down because 75 mm. is the calibre of the guns now chiefly in use in our army. Production of 3.7 millimeter shells would have required extensive retooling, only to turn out ammunition of no value to us.

The actual placing of lend-lease orders is being handled through three offices; munitions by the Navy's Bureau of Supplies and Accounts and by the Bureau of Ships; and army supplies by Under Secretary of War Robert Patterson.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—There may be a few greasy fingermarks on the cash till at the Fulton box office, where "Arsenic and Old Lace" has been a sell-out for week after long week, but the smiles on the faces of the men who sell you the tickets have nothing to do with the success of the show.

Sometime ago a lady from Virginia came to the box office and asked for a pair of tickets. She had only one night in the city and was anxious to spend it watching Karloff, the mad "engineer" of the Panama Canal, hiding his "Yellow Fever" victims in the basement.

But she was told no tickets were available. "However," one of the boys suggested, "if you will hang around awhile it may be that a couple of cancellations will come in."

Some three hours later a pair of tickets did indeed come in, and the grateful patron from Virginia, in thanking the box office boys profusely, told them, "When I get back home I'm going to send you a ham."

That Virginia ham has been received.

It seems that squirrels had been coming down the chimney, stealing the lump sugar, and hiding it in Waithman's shoes.

"Then," explained the correspondent, "I tried to head them off with the bridge table, but it didn't work. They got past anyway. After that we stopped buying lump sugar, and that ended our troubles. The squirrels became discouraged and went away."

KEENAN WYNN is comedian Ed Wynn's 24-year-old boy. When he was 15 Keenan obtained a pilot's license and began carving out a speed-demon's career with racing cars and speedboats. In 1934 he won the world's record for speed-boating around Manhattan island. Then he mastered the aquaplane, went into the movies where he stunted and played, in one film at least, with the beauteous Joan Crawford. His ambition is to become a great actor. He does comedy roles, but craves emotional, dramatic, meaty parts. It is said by his intimates that he bears a striking resemblance to the late George Gershwyn. At any event he has now organized a radio show, starring himself, to be known as "The Amazing Mr. Smith." The above being true, one wonders why he doesn't call it "The Amazing Mr. Wynn" and let it go at that.

A Farmer's Diary

Rural Electrification

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE linemen staked our electric line today. The main line will pass along the country road a half mile east, and a spur of it will end at our valley cottage. Within a few more weeks we will be serviced with current under a branch of the Rural Electrification Appropriation.

Neighbors in another valley, who have had electricity for some time, tell us there are merits in this system as it is founded. They find it very satisfactory.

The principle on which it works is this: By organizing and guaranteeing to use a large amount of power, a lower rate can be obtained from the power company that furnishes the current. Every farmer pays a slightly higher rate than the actual cost and the profits keep up the line and pay back the original government loan that made the line possible. Each farmer owns a share of stock in the company and so becomes a cooperator in this non-profit organization. Each customer reads his own meter, with only occasional inspection.

Everybody profits. Power companies sell more power. Manufacturers of electric supplies and tools and gadgets have a wider market, since every farmer becomes a potential customer. Farmers, themselves, can live as comfortably and as conveniently as in the city.

The scheme is inexpensive to install. A single share of stock costs just $5. There is an additional fee for inspection of wiring, before current is turned on. A minimum rate of $2.50 a month gives the average farmer all the power he needs, but if he wants more, the rate is proportionately lower. The company owns poles and transformers. All that is necessary is to get a sufficient number of willing patrons organize them, and work the REA loan out with Uncle Sam.

In our case, the local Farm Bureau served as "go-getter" for the line. Their organizer contacted the farmers some months ago.

Today a line of little stakes shows where the poles will be. Before summer is well established, farmhouses in our little valley will go modern. We look ahead with great anticipation to the day when the "juice" will be turned on.

WORKMEN PUT IN 800 FEET OF WATER LINE

$20,000 Project on East Side Progresses, Statler Says; Still Hunt Leak.

More than 800 feet of the $20,000 Park avenue east-Wayne street water line project have been installed, City Engineer W. C. Statler announced today.

Statler said the part of the line running across East Fourth street was being rushed to allow the reopening of that street for traffic. Employes from Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company ordinarily using Fourth street were forced to make several detours to circle the project.

Because of the large drop in available WPA laborers, the city has rented a trench digger which will greatly speed the construction. Of the 80 to 90 men employed on the $70,000 Lexington avenue water line project, only about 30 are available now. Others have been taken by the demands of private industry spurred on by defense contracts.

In connection with the construction of the new line, which will be a low pressure system, a pressure regulating valve will be installed at Jeanette avenue. This valve will regulate the pressure between the high pressure line and the new low pressure line, giving added protection in case of fire in the Westinghouse district, according to Statler.

City workers are still seeking a leak on the new $70,000 high pressure line, put into operation a week ago. The leak is located somewhere between Blanche street and Glessner avenue. It was discovered when pressure on the line continually subsided.

The search for the leak has continued for several days. Statler said today that his department will have to wait for the arrival of parts for the radio-detecting apparatus from Columbus. The department uses the equipment to locate leaks.

The only other leak found in the new line was discovered due to a faulty pipe and was discovered in the first test.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, April 17.

This day may be notable for the breaking up of long thwarted ambitions, the crumbling away of stagnations. Things should begin to stir in a dynamic and constructive manner which should place the fortunes and the objectives on a definitely stable basis. But such efforts should be based on well matured plans and sound judgment, and with an eye to loopholes of fraud, deception or misrepresentation, with particular wariness as to writings and documents. Some peculiar or sinister matter may be dragged into the open.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a state of affairs which may be definitely and decisively developed in the direction of putting the fortunes and ambitions on an enduring and stable basis. With well laid plans and sagacity there should be much progress and productive work, with many obstacles and old frustrations and impediments swept away for good and all. Some subtle or singular situations may be brought to the surface, but in all affairs be alert to treachery and fraud and sign and read all papers with great precaution.

A child born on this day should be enterprising, energetic, industrious and of sturdy character although with some inclinations toward accomplishing things by expediency rather than principle.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I shot a furtive uneasy glance at Dicky as I framed my answer to Carolyn. It was no part of my plan that he should hear either her question or my reply. I knew that if he caught any shred of that conversation, he would piece together her mysterious telephone call, and her desire for information on my compartment number, and come very near the right answer, in which case he most certainly would interfere ruthlessly with my plan for him to see that Carolyn was delivered safely to the college at Werhampton, where unknown to her, my father's men would keep efficient watch over her.

But he was listening to Helena's animated chatter, and with a feeling of reprieve, I answered Carolyn with the falsehood I had known I would have to use, from the moment Ronald had told me of the gangster's questioning of his sister concerning my train journey.

"I didn't want a compartment," I said. "I'm going to travel by coach. It's just as comfortable, indeed I think it's better than the chairs if one has to sit up. You have so much more room, if you get a turned seat to yourself. And there are few people going in on this train."

Check-Mating Carolyn.

"Why, that's awful!" she said. "You can't have traveled by coach I have. I'm sure Uncle Dicky doesn't realize, or he never would let you do it. I'm going right over to tell him about it right now."

She whirled as she spoke, but I was too quick for her. My hand shot out and gripped her arm, and I whirled her about facing me, keeping a gay smile on the lips the while, so that anyone looking at us would think we were indulging in some jesting foolery.

"You'd better pretend to smile too," I said, "if you know what's good for you. If you dare to let anyone know this isn't a joke, it will be the sorriest kind of a jest for you."

I let that sink in, keeping my eyes riveted on hers, until she gave a sorry imitation of a smile.

"Keep that on your face," I murmured, "while I tell you what an ill-bred meddling brat you are. I should think you had had enough proof of what Uncle Dicky thinks of you, without risking any more outbreaks on his part. And I want to warn you now. If you says one word to him about this compartment business, it will be the sorriest word you have yet spoken in your life. I mean this Carolyn. You are to keep quiet. Do you understand?"

The contrast between the fixed smile upon her white stiff lips and the blazing venom in her eyes was something so ghastly that I shuddered. But I gave her credit for courage and discretion, as she answered quietly: "Yes, I understand and I will obey you. It serves me right for trying to think of your comfort."

The temptation was strong upon me to tell her the reason for my outbreak, and also my knowledge of her perfidy but I knew that would be a fatal error. I did not underestimate her determination nor her ingenuity, however. I was sure that she would make every effort possible to talk to Dicky long enough to prod him into telephoning for a compartment for me.

Another Call for Carolyn.

But Ronald proved himself an efficient sentinel. He did not let Carolyn get a foot away from him until the maid came in with the message that she was again wanted at the telephone. Then, while she scurried out at one door, he rapidly walked out another, and I knew he would be at his listening post as soon as she began talking. And with the feeling that I was dangling at the end of a wire between heaven and earth, I went over to my husband's side to insure that Carolyn upon her return, would not have the opportunity to speak to him before Ronald should be able to get back to the living room.

"What's up, old dear?" my husband murmured. "Have you any line on this persistent telephone suitor of Carolyn's?"

"The Authority on Authorities"

AN EARLY TRUMP COUP

When you don't possess enough trumps in one hand to lead them often enough through a defender's tenace holding toward your own tenace, you can sometimes capture his honor or honors by finishing the hand with a lead of some other suit through him. If he has to ruff before you, whatever he plays can be covered by your trumps. That is what is usually called a "trump coup." It is rare enough at best, but when it does come it is nearly always right at the end of the hand, when no other suit cards remain in his hand and your own master hand. But it can come earlier.

	♠ K Q 6 5 ♥ 10 8 5 ♦ Q 6 ♣ K 8 6 5
♠ 3 ♥ J 7 ♦ K 10 7 4 2 ♣ A J 10 7 4	N. W. E. S.	♠ J 9 8 7 ♥ A Q 9 2 ♦ 8 5 3 ♣ 9 2
	♠ A 10 4 2 ♥ K 6 4 3 ♦ A J 9 ♣ Q 3

(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	2 ♦
2 ♠	Pass	Pass	3 ♣
Pass	3 ♦	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Dbl

West's double was based more on the bidding than anything else on the fact that the opponents tried to pass it out at just 2-Spades and later went higher. The deal may be played several ways, but what actually happened was worth seeing. Hard put for a good lead, West led the 4 of the diamonds which East had supported. North played the 6, East the 8 and South the 9 to make it clear to West he had the two higher ones. That might make West lead him for a club singleton, which he did when the 3 was led, as he came in with his A, then returned the heart 7 to the A and East fired back the heart 2 to the K.

Then South really went to work. He led the spade 2 to the K, club 6 to the Q, heart 4 to East's Q and took the returned spade 8 with dummy's Q. Notice now that dummy still holds two small spades, the diamond Q and the club K-8. South has two highest spades, heart 6 and diamond A-J. West has the diamond K-10 and three clubs, and East the spade J-9, heart 9 and diamond 8-5.

If declarer leads a trump from dummy, he can never get rid of both of his red losers. But he led the club K. East was cooked. If he ruffed, South would over-ruff, then ruff the heart in dummy, return to the diamond A, ruff the diamond J in dummy and have the high trump for the last trick. If he trashed a heart, so would South, who would then take the trump finesse, lead to the diamond A, ruff the J and have the spade A for the last trick. So East threw a diamond. South did likewise, took the trump finesse, cashed the diamond A, ruffed the heart and had the trump A for the final trick. It was a fancy trump coup on the ninth trick.

Tomorrow's Problem.

	♠ 10 8 4 2 ♥ Q 8 7 6 5 ♦ None ♣ A 9 6 4
♠ 7 6 3 ♥ 10 4 ♦ 5 4 3 ♣ J 8 7 5 2	N. W. E. S.	♠ 9 ♥ A K J 9 3 2 ♦ A Q J ♣ K Q 10
	♠ A K Q J 5 ♥ None ♦ K 10 9 8 7 6 2 ♣ 3

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

If South gets into 5-Spades, is doubled by East and then redoubles, how should he play this deal after West leads the heart 10?

BED FIRED BY ELECTRIC BULB

PORTALES, N. M.—(UP)—An 18-year-old co-ed at Eastern New Mexico college was cold. Her room was cold. She was sleepy—but her bed was cold.

She put a lighted electric bulb at the end of an extension cord between the sheets, crawled into bed and fell asleep.

Thirty minutes later she was awakened by smoking sheets. She got up, put out the fire and went back to bed—this time without trying to heat it first.
